

Worker Safety

At Adgraphix we are focused on providing our customers with the highest quality products and outstanding service. Always improving the way we deliver our products we now look to better improve our health and safety along with environmental practices. You may notice on your quote that some allowances have been made for worker safety.

Why have things changed?

In 2013 the government announced its Working Safer reform package with the aim of bringing down workplace injuries and death toll by 25%. The new Bill went in place during 2016 and makes every workplace responsible for the health and safety of all workers. Like Adgraphix, forward thinking companies are quick to adapt to new practices as they are announced.

How does this impact on pricing?

When we quote your work, we may itemise significant Health & Safety costs separately. You can be assured that all legal provisions to safeguard our workers and subcontractors are met. Some companies may omit additional requirements, like traffic management systems or compliant access gear in order that they meet a price point. These companies will not be in compliance with the law, which may also reflect on you when employing them.

What does this mean for you?

Under the Bill, by engagement in the quoting activity you hold responsibility for the safety of your staff and customers and have a duty to engage a reputable company with a Health and Safety system that actively engages and complies to its duties. If you don't, an inspector can impose a prohibition notice that will stop the work/activity from being carried out if he believes worker safety is compromised. Worse still, a worker could be injured or killed completing your work.

Environmental practices.

We care about the environment and continually strive to improve our work practices to reduce our impact on it. We regularly assess how we are doing things and make changes where we can such as recycling initiatives and equipment purchases. We do our absolute best to minimise the quantity of waste going to landfill.

adgraphix
.co.nz